

Fluid Reverie

Section 1:100

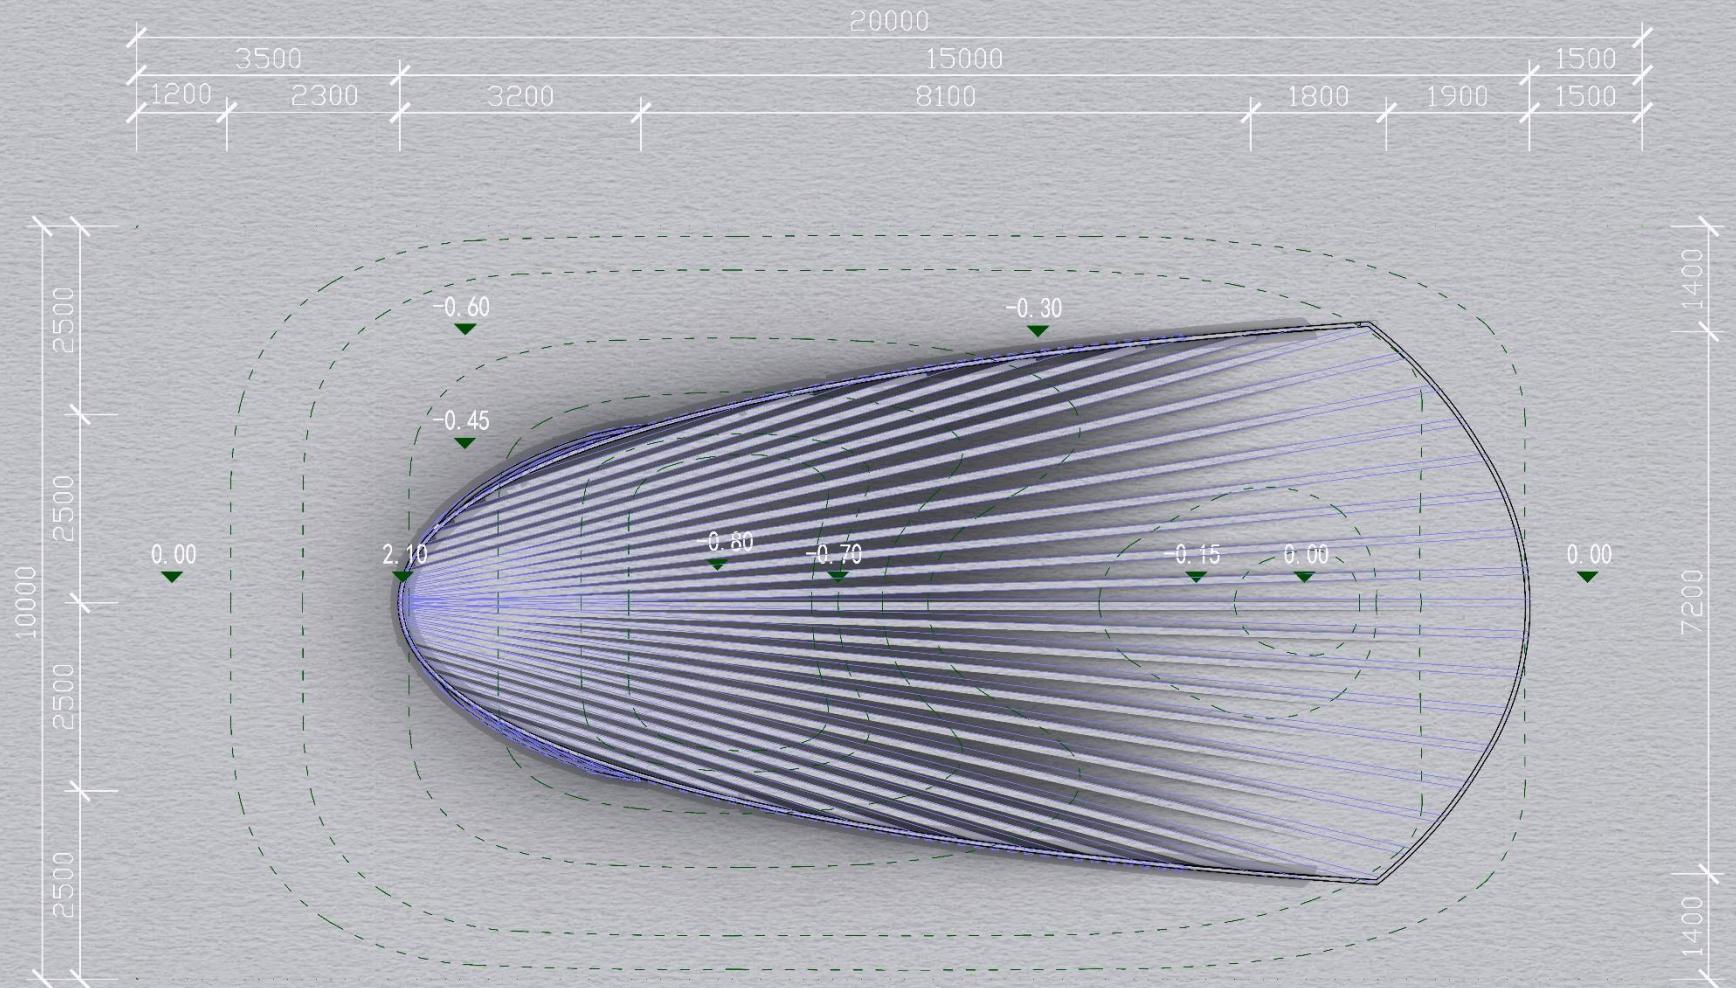

A giant whale seems to leap from a sea of flowers, leading visitors on a journey. Stepping into a sunken floral field and through a silvery woven skin, they enter a gentle sensory vessel—a passage toward nature’s mysterious origin, the body’s depths, and life’s source.

Inside this “womb,” filtered light ripples across the space. As vision ceases to dominate, other senses awaken—ears, fingers, skin, hair, even boundless imagination. It recalls our primal state before reason or sight, when life was felt purely through sensation.

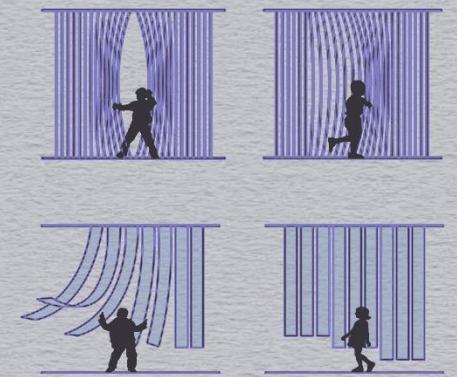

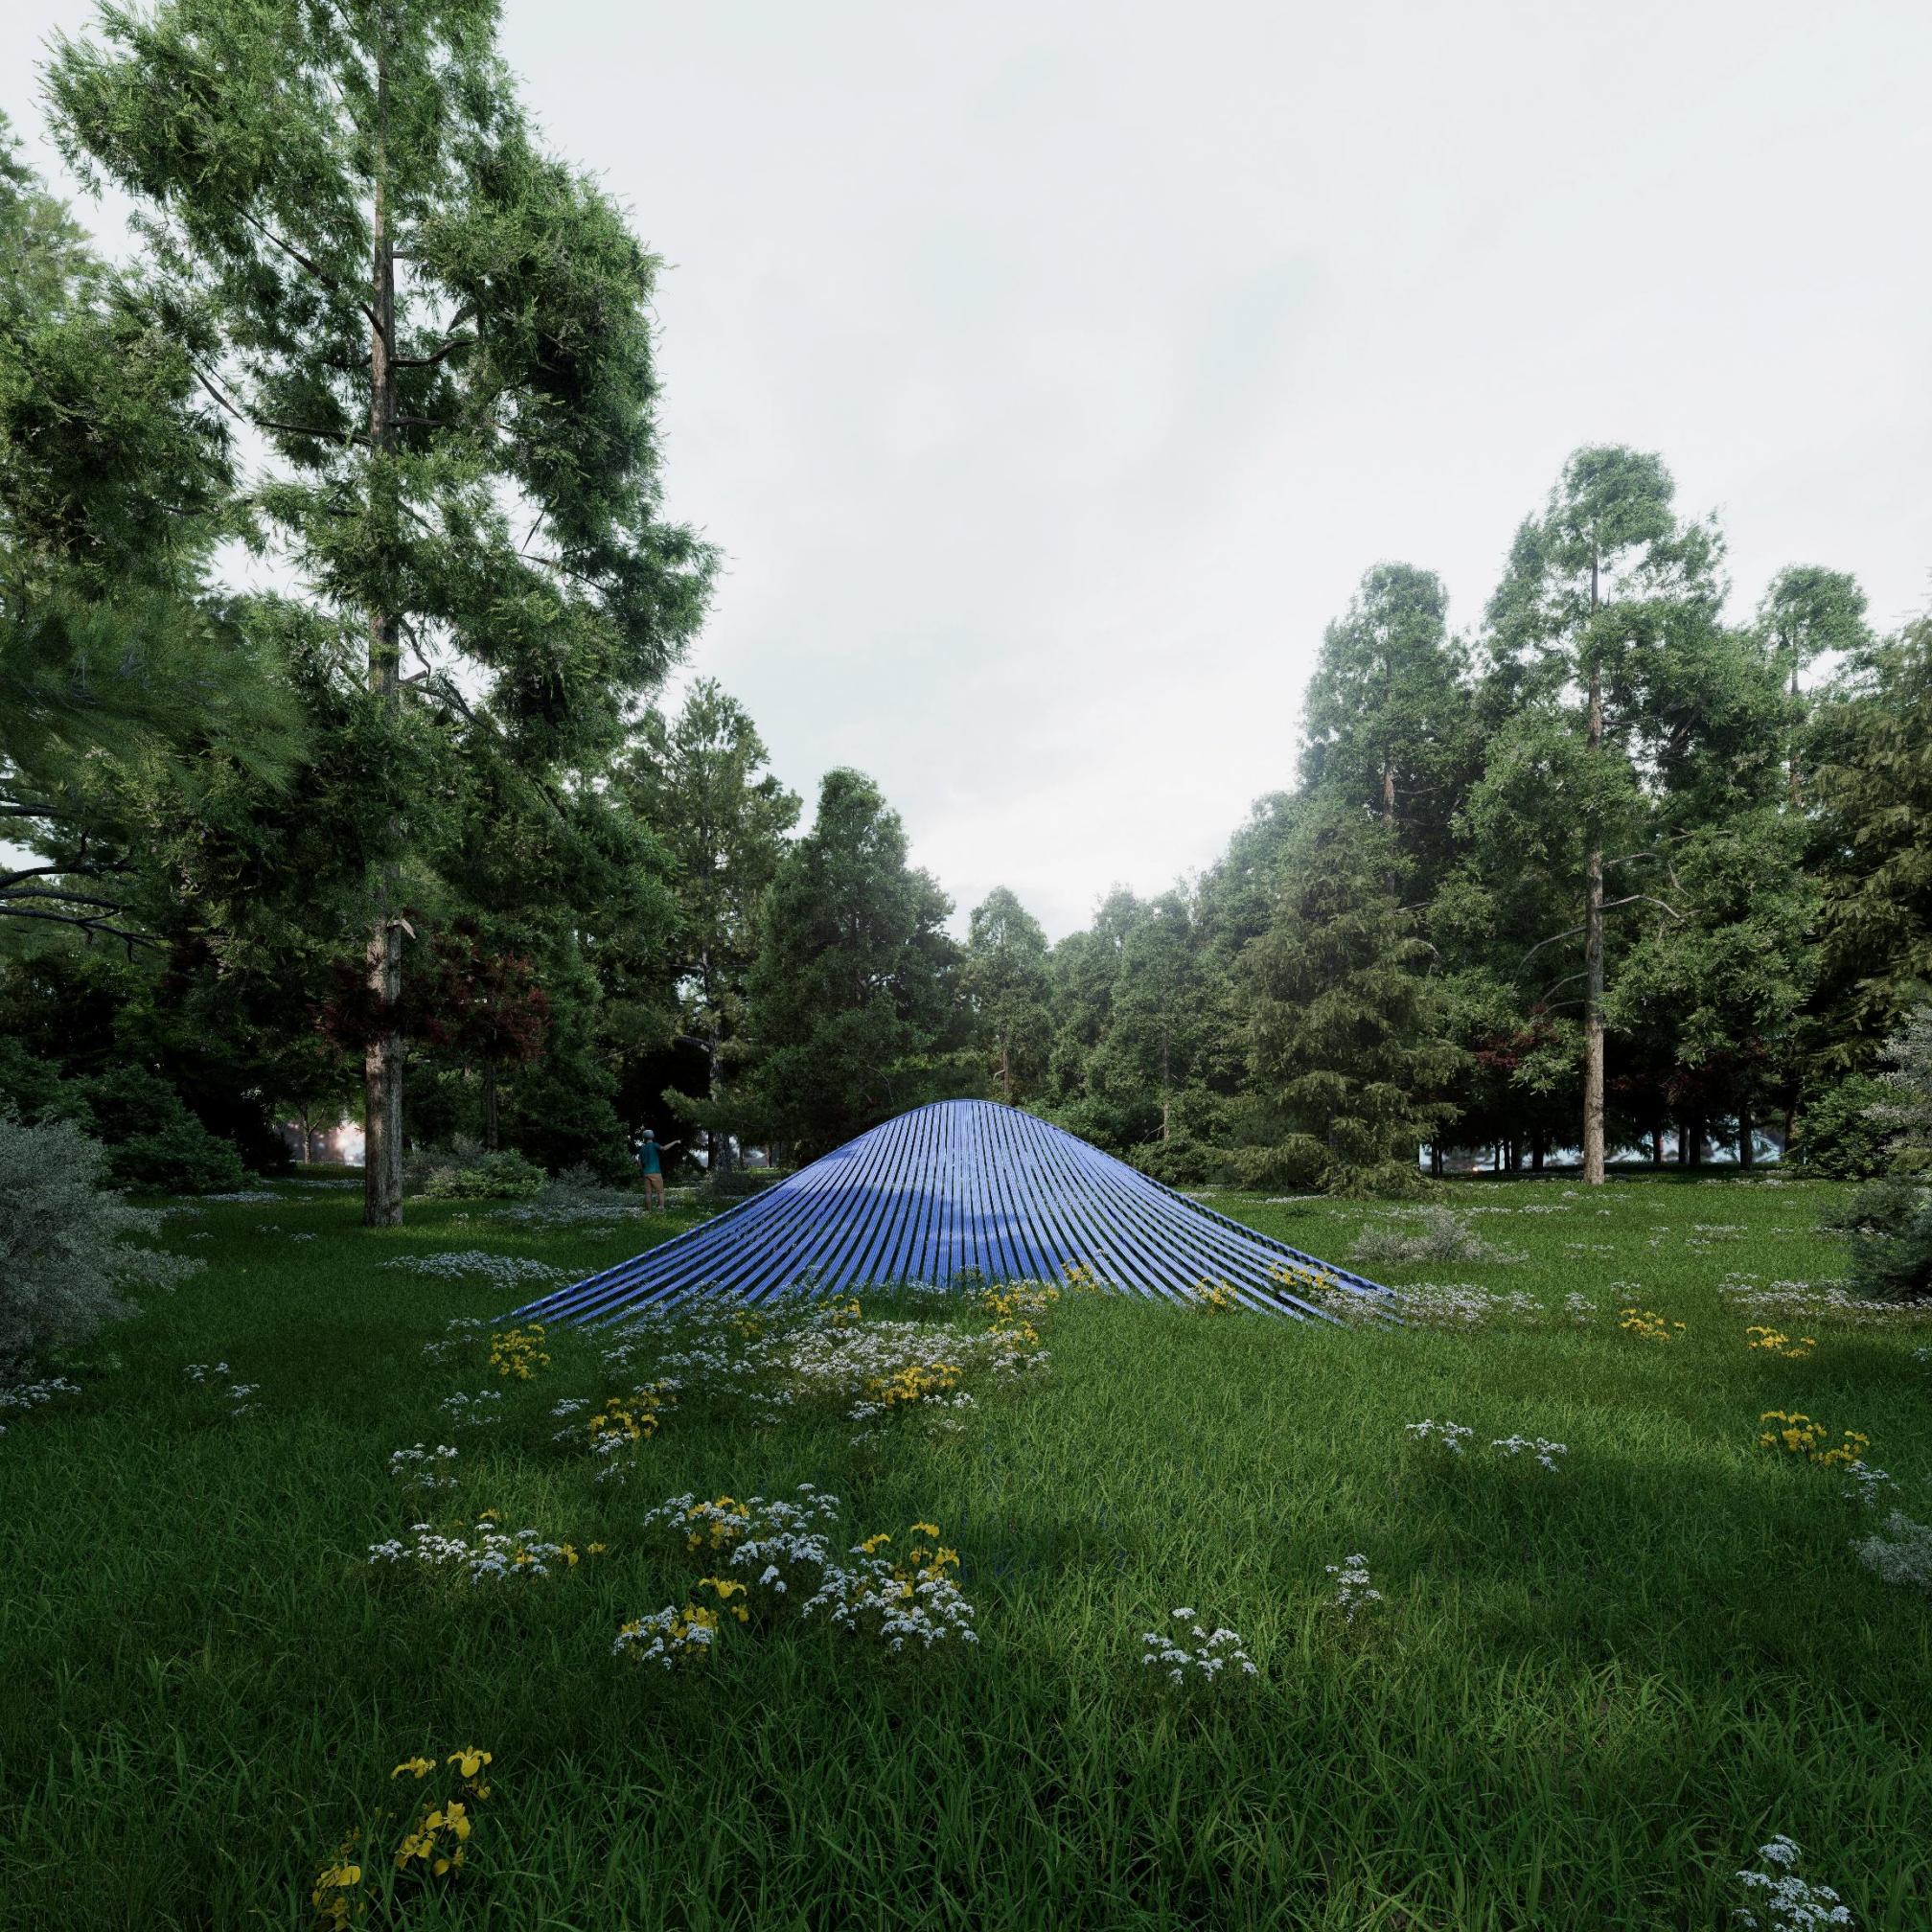

Evoking both mother and ocean—twin origins of life—it is a descent into memory’s depths, a flowing dream of rebirth. The sea, the whale’s belly, and the womb form a shared symbol of darkness, mystery, and renewal—a timeless story shaping how we sense the world’s safety and tenderness.

Plant list:

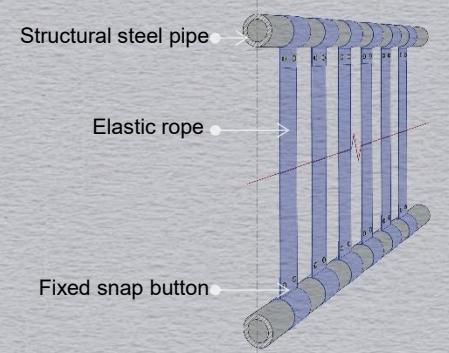

- Kentucky Bluegrass
- Perennial Ryegrass
- Dandelion
- Red Clover
- Heart-leaved Aster
- Coneflower

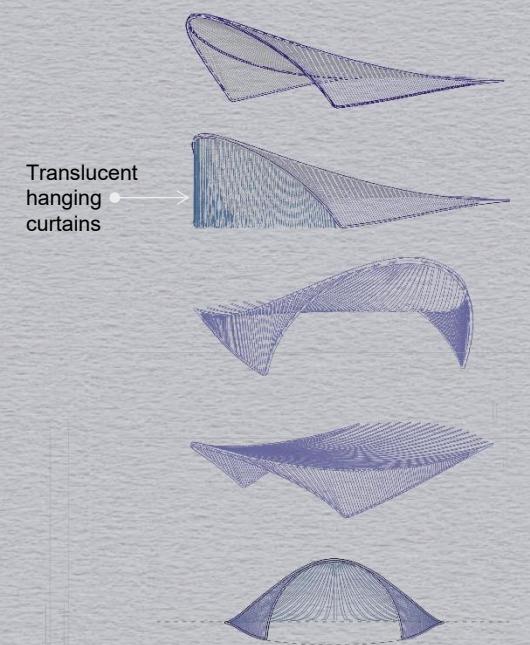

Plan 1:100

Resistance Band (Detachable and Reusable)

Installation Description

Structural Perspectives

